

Synergis Evacuation Assistant

Account for all your personnel during routine and emergency evacuations

Synergis Evacuation Assistant helps you manage and monitor routine and emergency evacuations to ensure the safety of individuals by tracking who has or hasn't reached their designated muster point.

Monitoring the status of individuals during an evacuation

During an emergency evacuation, organizations must account for all individuals within the facility, and when needed, share insights with first responders. Often, standalone or manual systems are employed to track evacuations. This can pose a safety risk by not having a unified and live view of the evacuation status of people.

Track the safety status of people during evacuations in real time

When an evacuation is triggered, Security Center Synergis™ automatically starts to track the safety status of all individuals in real time. When people arrive at the safety area or muster point, they can badge their credentials at a fixed or mobile reader or notify the mustering captain that they're safe. They can also advise of anyone at risk.

How we help

Real-time monitoring

Mustering captains and security operators can monitor the safety of all individuals being evacuated in real time. This allows them to quickly dispatch first responders if needed.

Instant updates

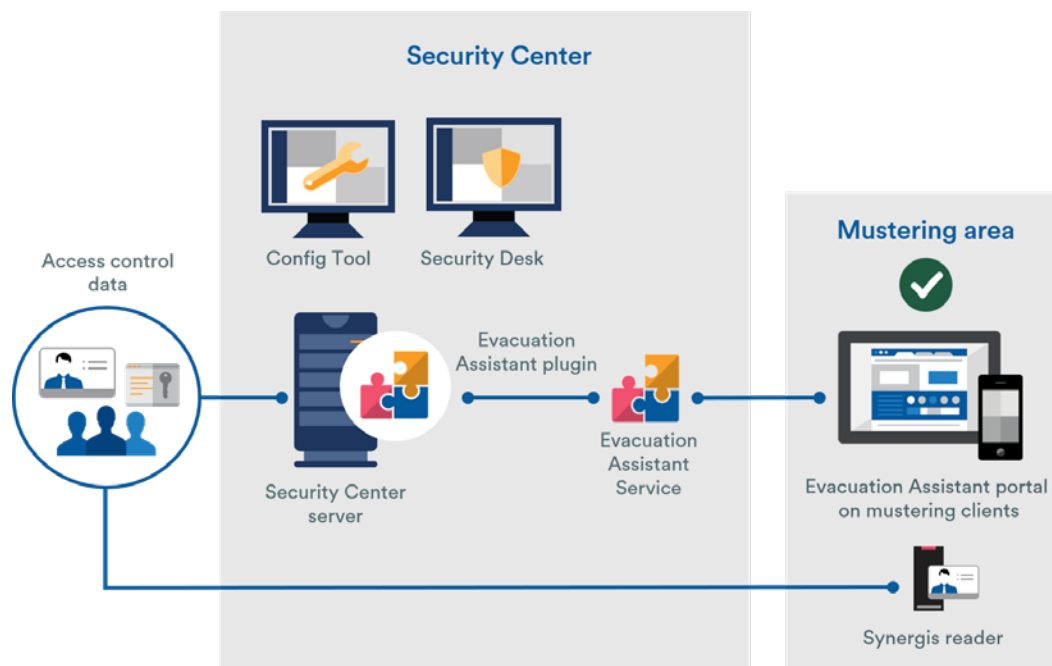

Mustering captains can add individuals to the evacuation roster, including employees or visitors. They can also change the safety status of people as events transpire throughout the evacuation process.

Run reports and dashboards

Get a comprehensive view of the evacuation process in real time. Dashboards and reports can be customized to provide the information you need at a single glance.
